Perceived Eeriness (after each block)

For each pair, mark the box that best describes how the assistant's voice felt during this block (1 to 7). Adapted from the Ho & MacDorman (2017) Eeriness index; the eeriness construct was applied to self-similar voices by Zibrek et al. (2018) and Guo et al. (2024). [Transcribe the exact validated anchor pairs from Ho & MacDorman (2017) before participant use.]

| The voice felt... | 1                     | 2                     | 3                     | 4                     | 5                     | 6                     | 7                     | ...the voice felt |

| Reassuring        | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | Eerie             |
| Natural           | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | Uncanny           |

Perceived voice similarity (manipulation check):

| Statement                                                     | 1 Not at all          | 2                     | 3                     | 4                     | 5                     | 6                     | 7 Extremely           |
| How much did the assistant's voice sound like your own voice? | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> | <input type="radio"/> |

Analyze the three eeriness items as a mean eeriness score and the similarity item as a manipulation check; do not exclude participants based on these ratings.
